Our Mission:
To engage families in “Play”

“They have enjoyed it immensely every day since (it arrived). I am continuously impressed with the quality, durability, and safety of this set. I love that they aren’t getting any splinters like they did with our old set.”

- Sara Jo Poff
Mother of four children, Minnesota
When you’re ready to make an investment into a backyard playset, it can be tempting to add all the bells and whistles at once. After all, your child will grow into it and use the playset for years to come. But you’ll want to resist the urge to purchase an amazing play structure that does not meet your child’s developmental needs. This could leave you with a frustrated kid or, even worse, an injured one.

The good news is many playsets can be upgraded or expanded as your child grows and is ready to tackle new physical challenges. Think about what your child is capable of today, not years from now, when buying the right playset.

For Children Younger than Two Years

Toddlers are just learning to navigate the world around them and trying to become steady on their feet. It’s important that much of their play can be done while crawling or cruising. Focus on fun spaces that are low to the ground and that are easy to navigate, like small sets of stairs or ramps. It’s safer for toddlers under the age of two, if they do not climb more than 3 feet from the ground. Consider these play options to ensure you’re buying the right playset for your youngest children:

- Bucket swings or baby swings
- Glider swings
- Tunnels with bubble panels
- Open slides
- Sand or water tables
- Accessories like wheels, telescopes or megaphones

For Children Ages 2 - 5 Years

Preschoolers are a little more sure-footed, always ready to jump, leap, and climb. At this age, their playset can mimic that of school-age children, just smaller, shorter, and lower to the ground. At this age, no pieces of playground equipment should be higher than 6 feet. Remember, if you have to lift your child onto the equipment, then it’s not age-appropriate.

For this age group, plan on expanding into:

- Short ramps with rock-climbing inspired grips
- Short ramps with ropes
- Lower swing beams or horizontal ladders
- Tube and spiral slides
- Belt swings, tires swings or horse rider swings

For Children Ages 5 and Older

For school-age children, playsets that incorporate outdoor play helps them develop muscle strength, balance, and build hand-eye coordination. But there are safety precautions to take, even at older ages, and your playset should not include pieces that are higher than 8 feet off the ground.

For school-age children, your playset can include:

- Large rock-climbing ramps
- Cargo nets or ropes courses
- Taller horizontal ladders
- Trapeze bars or rings
- Fireman’s poles
- Buoy ball or disc swings

Safety at Any Age

Keep your children, at any age, safe when falls inevitably happen. Grass and dirt are not appropriate surfaces for your playset, as they provide no cushion on impact to protect a child who falls. Instead, opt to place your play structure on a material like shredded rubber, mulch, sand or pea gravel.

Additionally, check your playset periodically for hazards, developed over time, that could potentially harm children at play. Look for splinters in untreated wood structures or rust on metal structures. Better yet? Purchase a playset constructed of vinyl, which will hold up from wear and tear for a longer time. Also, check for open S-hooks, protruding bolts, or anything with sharp edges.
“My four-year-old pretends he is a pirate. There are a lot of different ways different aged children can play on the same set.”

- Christine M.
  Mother of two, Pittsburgh
The sound of children laughing when they’re playing and having fun is one of the sweetest sounds on Earth. Walk past a schoolyard at recess and it’s almost impossible not to pause and remember having such childhood fun.

At Swing Kingdom our goal is to help children spend as much time as possible laughing and having fun on their playground equipment. To achieve that goal, we create playsets filled with features that give children almost unlimited opportunities to climb, swing, jump, slide, hide, and just enjoy those carefree days of childhood.

We also focus on parents’ concerns about safety, environmental stewardship, durability, and value of investment. That concern for children and parents means that every playset we install is a joint venture between children and the adults who love and care for them. When you choose Swing Kingdom, your experience will begin with Superb Customer Service. Our assignment is to serve your needs so we listen closely and work with you to create the playset that’s best for your children and your available space.

- Vinyl Is Final - One crucial factor that distinguishes our playsets is that we construct them with vinyl, and Vinyl Is Final! Our vinyl has five times the tensile strength and four times the flexibility of wood with none of the splinters. Vinyl delivers safety, durability, and stewardship because we use vinyl made from recycled materials. In fact, the use of vinyl in an average-sized Swing Kingdom playset keeps 2,450 plastic jugs out of a landfill. Vinyl requires no maintenance, and it’s easy to clean. In addition, if you do like the look of wood, we can create that same appearance from vinyl.

- Innovation - One more major reason to choose Swing Kingdom. Our designers are constantly creating new features for playground equipment. You can put those features together in the way that suits your children best and in a way that will provide them and their friends with fun and exercise for years and years. Bonding with your children is a wonderful part of having a playset in your yard and the bonding process can actually begin with the design of your playset. Think of the fun that you’ll have when you sit down with your children and design their playset by using our online Playset Design Center, which you can find on our website. “No, Daddy. Let’s put the swings on this side and the chute on the other side.”

- Environmental Stewardship - This is important at Swing Kingdom, and all of our playsets are green. Regardless of which colors you choose, Swing Kingdom’s playsets are green, in the environmental sense. We make our vinyl from recycled plastic, and our average set keeps 2,450 plastic milk jugs out of a landfill. In addition, our extruded lumber contains an effective UV inhibitor that offers significant sun protection.

- Value of Investment - Your children’s childhood fun is reason enough to create and install a Swing Kingdom playset. When the time comes that they grow up and you want to let them take their playset for their children, it will still be in quality playing condition.

For these and many more vital reasons, a playset from Swing Kingdom is an investment in your children’s fun, fitness, and happiness, so start the process of creating that playset today by contacting your local Swing Kingdom dealer or by contacting us directly.
“It is such a nice piece that my neighbor’s children come over and play on it. They tell their parents they want to play at the park; the park is our backyard. As grandparents, it is nice to have a place for our grandkids to have a place to hang out.”

- Jeff Dutcher

Grandfather with six grandchildren, Michigan

HEALTHY TREND: FITNESS PLAY FOR KIDS
September 26, 2017 - Written by: Swing Kingdom

When adults think about exercising, a gym may come to mind, with rows of treadmills or a section for free weights. Like adults, children also need exercise. However, exercise for children is a little different. They "work out" through fitness play! In an effort to encourage healthy and strong childhoods, we've designed a new playset. Drumroll please... the Fitness Play Center!!

What is Fitness Play? For children, fitness play can be broken down into three categories: endurance, strength, and flexibility.

Endurance – Children can develop and improve their endurance through physical activity. During this time, their heart will beat faster and they will breathe heavier. This activity will strengthen the heart.

Strength – Strength training for kids is not lifting weights. Children can tone and strengthen their muscles through climbing elements such as a rock wall or cargo net. Monkey bars are another element that improves strength through fitness play.

Flexibility – Children increase their flexibility through play as well as everyday tasks. Bending down to tie their shoes or reaching for a toy allows children to stretch their muscles. You may recognize many elements from popular television shows like American Ninja Warrior, including cargo nets, salmon ladder, rock wall, and warp wall. Children can now have their very own Ninja Warrior course in the backyard. Imagine watching an episode of American Ninja Warrior with your children on a Saturday morning and after breakfast opening the door to your backyard and recreating the episode with your children.

Obstacle course races such as the Tough Mudder, Spartan Race, or Rugged Maniac, are popping up in cities all over the United States, many of them with a children's race series as well. With our Fitness Play Center, children can race and tackle obstacles just like mommy and daddy, minus the mud (hopefully!)

A Lifetime of Fitness It's important that children start with fitness play at a young age. This sets them up for a healthy lifestyle and a lifetime of fitness. Motivate your children to be active by setting a good example. You can make it part of everyday life by taking the stairs instead of the elevator or parking your car farther away from a store entrance.

Help your children be active by engaging in fitness play together! Children will be more likely to engage in fitness play if they have age-appropriate activities available to them. This way, activities are not too challenging for them and they won't be discouraged.

By setting up your children with a healthy lifestyle, you are providing them with benefits such as strong muscles and bones, better sleep patterns, high self-esteem, and more!

Are you ready to start your child's path to healthy living through fitness play? How do you encourage fitness play with your children?
