

Product Description

The Royal Triple Station Dip is capable of being used by multiple people at the same time thanks to the triple aspect of this equipment. This encourages small groups to work out together and give each other the support they need and a good dose of healthy competition. Dips are one of the most underrated kinds of exercise but they offer toning of multiple muscle groups including the chest, shoulders, biceps, triceps, and upper back. It also helps with core stability and slowly building muscle mass as well as giving joints the repetitive motion they need to stay in good shape. For beginners to the world of exercise, the Royal Triple Station Dip has an information board in the center to give guidance on how to use the dipping bars and prevent injury. The whole station is weather-proof so it can remain outdoors all year long wherever it's fixed without worrying about rusting metal. The simple and modern design adds lots of appeal to any space to attract a wider range of users.
