

Product Description

Ideally placed in an area with public access such as a high school or college campus, a shared communal space or a park, the Royal Triple Station Country Skier will help individuals tone a variety of muscle groups. The swinging motion required for the equipment to function helps upper and lower leg muscles to develop through low-impact exercise which is good for joint health too. The back and forth skiing motion used on the Royal Triple Station Country Skier is also a great way to control balance and boost agility whether the user is a skier, partakes in other kinds of sport, or just wants to improve overall fitness levels. Three people can use this cross-country ski machine outdoors simultaneously which is always a bonus, keeping the user's mind busy as their body goes through the repetitive motion. This workout machine adds variety to usual fitness routines and the benefits can be felt throughout the body.
