

Product Description

Everyone from high school students and athletes in training to the elderly trying to keep fit will appreciate having the Double Station Retractors available for public use as there's nothing quite like it to tone muscle groups in the back. It can be used to relieve tense muscles before a major workout session while at the same time bringing an improvement to posture, strengthening shoulder muscles and giving joints a great range of motion. The handles have a superb grip so that exercises can take place in a controlled way whatever direction the handles are being pulled in. As it's a Double Station Retractors set it means two people can use it at the same time whether it's friends wanting to chat facing each other as they practice scapular retraction or strangers who want to be back to back. This gym equipment can be placed in a public area to improve health and fitness in the local area or on a college campus to give students the ability to workout spontaneously.
