

Product Description

The Royal Double Station Rower is designed for two children, teenagers or adults to use at the same time as everyone knows working out together is much better than going it alone. It also promotes social interaction as people can talk to each other as they exercise, and there's nothing better than some friendly competition when it comes to exercising. The equipment is designed to be used in all weathers whether in a public park or shared community area. When it's a sunny day and people don't feel like sitting inside a gym they can head to the park knowing that there's suitable equipment to give them a heart-pumping workout. It can also be used to warm people up during the colder months as they pretend to be rowing across a lake. The Royal Double Station Rower helps to develop the core muscles and back as well as toning the arms and shoulders in a series of back and forth motions. The board between the two rowers gives tips and advice on how to use the equipment for best results.
