

Product Description

The chest press is one of the most popular pieces of equipment in the gym for both men and women as it can help to strengthen the shoulders, arms and chest in one single repetition. For that reason it's often one of the most crowded fitness systems, however with this machine each of the stations on the Double Station Chest Press function independently so two users can press at their own pace. The Double Station Chest Press can be placed anywhere outside such as in a public park so any passerby or student can use the equipment whenever they feel like it, either on their own or with a friend. The equipment works by allowing the user to chest press their own body weight so it's highly adaptable to all age ranges from teenagers to elderly fitness enthusiasts. It benefits from a solid construction to cope with any weight or fitness level of the user, and it also has a special coating to protect it from the elements all year round.
