

Product Description

If you're after a bench that meets durability, comfort, and, most importantly, style, the Diamond Pattern Austin Bench with Arms is the one for you. For style points, the seat is made of thin, sturdy metal laces that form a beautiful lattice design. But this also makes it super practical, as there will be no puddles forming after a rainy day as the pattern lets water drain right through. That means the bench is ever ready to use and free of rust. And since the seat curves at all the right places, anyone who takes a seat can lean back and relax without the dreaded backache. For further support, there are comfortable armrests on both sides neatly complementing the angles of the seat. And thanks to its commercial-grade cast iron frame and steel slats, the Diamond Pattern Austin Bench with Arms is tough as nails. You've also got installation options. Go with a surface mount, which firmly bolts the legs down on harder surfaces, or if you like to keep things flexible, there's a portable mount option.
